The 2025 Advanced Clean Transportation Expo in Anaheim, California, was a rousing success for Toyota.

You had Jordan Choby, group vice president, Powertrain, giving a keynote address detailing Toyota's commitment to hydrogen fuel cells.

You had an announced partnership with energy resilience company Rehlko, which will now use Toyota's hydrogen fuel cell modules in its stationary power generator products.

And you had a Toyota booth overflowing with technology and ideas.

We had a camera there, so you wouldn't miss any of it.
