Toyota Corolla Featured in ‘Mississippi Made’ Museum Exhibit

May 06, 2026

Image not found or type unknown

The?Toyota?Corolla?shines in a new museum exhibit celebrating 250 iconic creations proudly made in Mississippi.?

The “Mississippi Made” exhibit opened at the Two Mississippi Museums in Jackson back in March?and?showcases?the people, industries and traditions that have shaped the state.?It coincides with the United States turning?250 years old?this year.?

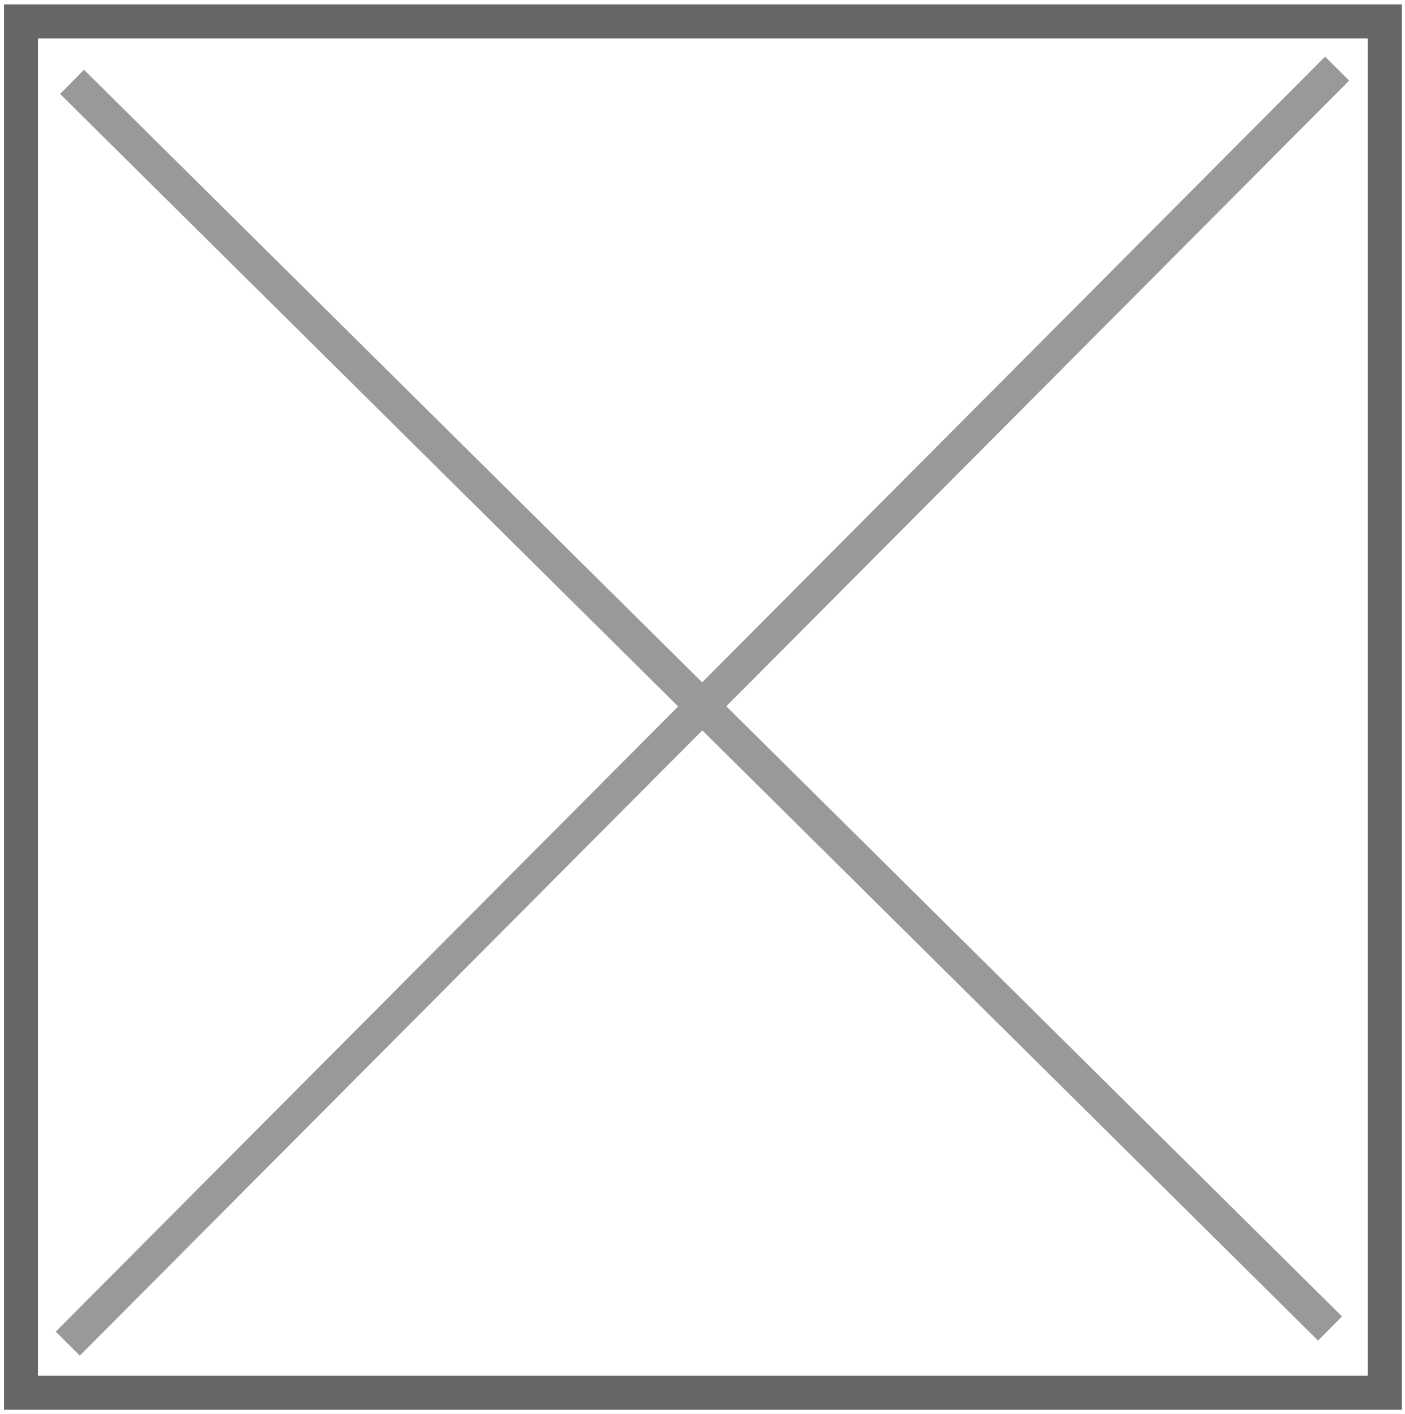

When asked to?participate, the team at Toyota Mississippi wanted to do something big. They ended up?donating?a partially deconstructed Toyota Corolla with a stand-alone door assembly and engine with axle?and wheel.?

Fun fact: The first?Corolla?assembled in Mississippi?rolled off the line in November 2011.?Since then, more than 2 million have been?assembled?in the?Magnolia?state.?

Corolla Close-Up?— The Toyota Corolla is on display at the?Two Mississippi Museums as part of its “Mississippi Mad

Corolla Close-Up?— The Toyota Corolla is on display at the?Two Mississippi Museums as part of its “Mississippi Made” exhibit featuring 250 artifacts made?or assembled?in the state.

The exhibit?features 250 artifacts spanning from the 19th?century to today?— tracing more than two centuries of innovation, craftmanship and cultural influence and reflecting the state’s role in agriculture, manufacturing, music, fashion, science,?literature?and the arts.

Toyota Teamwork?—?The Toyota Mississippi team behind the Corolla’s?entry?at the museum.?They?donated?a partially deconstructed Corolla with a stand-alone door assembly and engine with axle and wheel.

Besides the Corolla, visitors will also see a?19th?century cotton spin-ginner,?a?log wagon?and even?Elvis Presley’s?bathrobe.

The exhibit is free and open?through?November.?Go here for more information.?