

Buckle Up for Life Dispels Top Five Myths about Car Seats - Infographic

September 10, 2015

MYTH: A one-year-old can ride in a forward-facing car seat.

FACT: Children should be rear-facing until at least age two.

According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, children should remain in rear-facing car seats until age two, or until they exceed the height or weight limit for the car seat. According to a study by the University of Virginia, children under age two are 75 percent less likely to die or to be severely injured in a crash if they are rear-facing.
