

Under the Helmet and in the Hot Seat

June 28, 2019

“Drivers, start your engines.” Those four words can’t help but spark adrenaline in the stands, in the pit and in front of the screen at home. For the drivers, it’s the signal to slam on the gas and maintain control while they blast past their checkpoints at 200 m.p.h. But what’s it like behind the wheel when the green flag goes down? We thought it was time to ask Toyota Racing drivers to tell us about the view from the hot seat.
