2020 TOYOTA GR SUPRA GREDDY PERFORMANCE FORMULA D GR SUPRA

Built by Ken Gushi Motorsports and GReddy Performance, driver Ken Gushi pilots the No. 21 GR Supra and competes in the 2020 Formula Drift Pro class. Based on the 2020 GR Supra, this all-new build focused on engineering a design that would facilitate quick repairs. For example, the team integrated the headlights and front fascia to the factory crash-bar to make it easy to remove the entire front to provide ample engine bay access. Other modifications include relocating the radiator to the rear for improved cooling and balance, and replacing the factory fuel tank with a 10-gallon Radium Engineering fuel cell surge tank.

The Pandem Rocket Bunny body kit accentuates the GR Supra's aggressive body lines, and the widened stance allows for increased steering angle and wider wheel and tire combinations. A Sean Adriano Racing exhaust system sings a sweet, if not sonorous, song. Finally, its livery in white with red and black accents with white Rays Gram Lights 57DR wheels aligns with the popular Toyota Gazoo Racing color scheme.

With the 2020 Formula Drift season at the midway point, fans can catch Gushi and the No. 21 GReddy Performance Formula D GR Supra competing in rounds five and six in Dallas on Oct. 30-Nov. 1. Rounds seven and eight, the season finale, will be held in Irwindale, Calif. Nov. 20-22, 2020.
